

Contents

	Acknowledgments	ix
	Introduction: Reading the Signs of the Times	1
	Terms and Conditions
1	The Reformation of History and William Cobbett's A History of the Protestant "Reformation"	13
2	William Cobbett and the (Un)Healthy Body Matter, Metaphor, and the Man	34
3	"A labor of death and a labor against death" The Writing of History in Thomas Carlyle's Past and Present	58
4	Resisting the Abyss: The Reinscription of Labor in Carlyle's Past and Present	81
5	The "Recovery" of the Past History and (Self-)Representation in Benjamin Disraeli's Sybil; or, The Two Nations	106

6	“With the shuttle and spindle we may redeem our race” Labor, Redemption, and the Working-Class Body in Disraeli’s Sybil	139
	Conclusion: “But what are we to do?”	169
	Notes	173
	Works Cited	207
	Index	215