

CONTRIBUTORS

Barbara Allen Babcock graduated from Yale Law School in 1963 and practiced criminal defense law for eight years in the District of Columbia, where she was first director of the Public Defender Service. In 1972 she was the first woman appointed to the faculty at Stanford Law School and is now the Judge John Crown Professor of Law, Emerita. She has written and taught in civil and criminal procedure, sex discrimination, and women's legal history. She served as assistant attorney general for the Civil Division in the Carter administration's Department of Justice.

Cornell W. Clayton is professor of political science and Edward R. Meyer Fellow at Washington State University. He is author and editor of numerous articles and books on law and judicial politics, including The Politics of Justice: The Attorney General and the Making of Legal Policy (1992) and Government Lawyers: The Federal Legal Bureaucracy and Presidential Politics (1995).

Mark Curriden is a lawyer and journalist in Dallas, Texas. His book with Leroy Phillips, Contempt of Court: The Turn-of-the-Century Lynching That Launched a Hundred Years of Federalism (1999), won a 2001 ABA Silver Gavel Award and in 2005 was named by the Wall Street Journal as one of the five best criminal justice books of all time. Curriden regularly speaks around the country on Parden and the Johnson case.

Paul Finkelman is President William McKinley Distinguished Professor of Law and Public Policy and Senior Fellow in the Government Law Center at Albany Law School. He is the author of more than twenty books and one hundred scholarly articles on legal and constitutional history, slavery and race, separation of church and state, and baseball and the law.

Phillip B. Gonzales is professor and chair of sociology at the University of New Mexico. He is the author of Forced Sacrifice: The Hispano Cause in New Mexico and the Racial Attitude Confrontation of 1933 (2001). He maintains an interest in Nuevomexicano politics and identity and is completing a book on the native son campaign for Hispano political equality.

John D. Gordan III, a graduate of Harvard College and Harvard Law School, is a partner in the New York office of Morgan, Lewis and Bockius LLP. He has written a number of articles on American legal history.

Henry M. Greenberg is a shareholder in the Albany, New York, office of Greenberg Traurig, LLP. He is a trustee of the Historical Society of the Courts of the State of New York and editor in chief of its newsletter.

Kermit L. Hall was president and professor of history, University at Albany, State University of New York. His many publications include the award-winning Oxford Companion to the Supreme Court of the United States (rev. ed., 2005), a main selection of History Book Club, and The Magic Mirror: Law in American History (1989).

John R. Vile, BA, College of William and Mary, and PhD, University of Virginia, is professor and chair of the Department of Political Science at Middle Tennessee State University. Among his many works, he is editor of Great American Judges: An Encyclopedia (2003) and Great American Lawyers: An Encyclopedia (2001) and author of The Encyclopedia of Constitutional Amendments, Proposed Amendments, and Amending Issues, 1789–2002 (2003) and The Constitutional Convention of 1787: A Comprehensive Encyclopedia of America's Founding (2005).