

Contents

List of Illustrations	xiii
Series Editors' Preface	xv
Preface	xvii
Acknowledgments	xxi
Introduction	I

One

Slavery in Missouri 6

A Proslavery Speech on the Admission of Missouri	10
A Girl Named Mourning	11
The Freedom Law, 1824	12
"Yesterday was the . . . Sale of my darkeys"	14
"The girl I shall not warrant sound"	15
"Rachel is free"	16
"All hands at work at the peaches"	16
Statutory Restrictions on the Rights and Liberties of Free Black People	19
Charles Peabody Describes Slavery in Lexington, Missouri	20
Dred Scott Sues for His Freedom	21
Bond for a Free Black Woman	23
William Wells Brown Remembers His Life as a Slave	23
"Emancipation . . . would convert this vast region . . . into a howling wilderness"	26

Two

Missouri Divides 31

The Squatter Sovereign Proclaims: "Kansas declared in favor of Slavery"	37
A Republican Newspaper Editor Comments Favorably on the High Price of Missouri Slaves	38
A St. Louis Newspaper Laments the "fratricidal strife on the soil of Kansas"	39
William B. Napton Deplores the Possibility of Emancipation in Missouri	40
Democratic and Constitutional Union Newspaper Editorials on the 1860 Presidential Election	42
Missouri! Bright Land of the West!	48

Missouri Democrats Proclaim Their Loyalty	49
Minerva Blow's Flag Is Still Waving for the Union	52
"Peace . . . should be maintained in our State"	54
"The attempt to overthrow an established government is the plainest treason"	56

Three

Missourians Confront War 58

Missouri's Minute Men Join the Southern Cause	62
Lieutenant Colonel John S. Bowen Reports on Jayhawkers to Governor Claiborne F. Jackson	64
General Daniel M. Frost and Captain Nathaniel Lyon Argue over the Fate of Camp Jackson	66
Alice Cayton Believes St. Louis Will Be Cleared of Germans	68
Governor Jackson Condemns the "bloody and revolutionary schemes" of the U.S. Government	69
"I Goes to Fight mit Sigel"	71
German Ladies Present a Union Flag	73
"You may be assured that she talks Southern"	74
The Ladies Union Aid Society Visits Benton Barracks	75
Stephan Werly Refuses to Serve under a Colonel Who "does not seem to know any religion"	76
The Ladies Union Aid Society Raises Funds for the Cause	78
Confederate Soldiers Exhort Pro-Southern Women to Stand Firm	80
This War amongst Neighbors and Brothers	81

Four

Missouri's Battles 84

Remembering Boonville: The First Battle on the Soil of Missouri	88
Union Soldiers Are Spoiling for a Fight	90
"I feel any thing but lonesome when I get among the St. Louis Boys"	93
"They were ever seen in the thickest of the fight, cheering on their men": The Battle of Wilson's Creek	95
The Ray Children Witness the Battle of Wilson's Creek	100
General John C. Frémont Declares Martial Law and Frees Slaves	102
"We are engaged in war with an army of desperate adventurers"	103
Private Henry Voelkner Complains about the Army's Lack of Information	105

Edward Bates Discusses Gunboats and Politics with His Son	107
A Senate in Exile	108
Rebel Soldiers Declare, “Our cause is as sure to triumph as God reigns in Heaven”	112
David Monlux Tells His Father, “We have a first rate time in our tent”	113
A Jesuit Chaplain Suffers alongside His Soldiers	114
A Confederate Soldier at the Siege of Vicksburg	115
Sergeant Albert Allen Wants to Emigrate to Mexico to Get away from Germans	118

Five

Civilians Cope with War 121

“Fashionable Secesh Ladies” Write Their Friends in the Army	125
A St. Louis “she-devil” Promises Revenge	126
Elvira Scott Laments That Her Home Is “no longer a safe asylum”	129
Lucy Thurman Asks Her Cousin to Come Home if He Can “get out of old Abe’s clutches”	131
“Let us see if we can’t have a ‘raid’ ourselves”	133
Willard Mendenhall Is Harassed by Federals	134
Steamers and Ships on the Mississippi River	135
Henry Crawford Describes the Execution of a Bushwhacker	137
Private David Allan Cares Little for Suffering Farmers in Southeast Missouri	138
Sarah Jane Hill Helps Nurse Wounded Union Soldiers	140
Cordelia Harvey Cares for Wounded and Sick Soldiers at Cape Girardeau	142
A Woman’s Secret Code	144
William Kesterson Writes Home from an Army Hospital	144
Are Partisan Rangers Confederate Soldiers?	147
The St. Louis Union Club “will no longer dally with treason nor compromise with traitors”	149
How I Robbed a Young Couple	150
Adair County Provides for Widows and Orphans	151
Refugee Children	152

Six

Bushwhackers, Jayhawkers, and Prisoners 155

Mary Ann Cordry Takes the Oath of Loyalty	157
General Order No. 11	158

General Schofield Copes with the Aftermath of General Order No. 11	159
“There are strict orders against taking any more prisoners that is found . . . as bushwhackers”	161
A Missouri Soldier Burns Homes in Tennessee	164
“I had nothing much to [lose] and what I had is gone”	166
“Bloody Bill” Anderson Threatens the Women of Western Missouri	167
Cyrus Russell Is Taken Prisoner during the Battle of Pilot Knob	171
“The military force looked miserably insufficient to successfully cope with the enemy”	174
They Received Confederate Friends with Smiles and Tears	176
“Strange to say—we did not feel afraid”	177
The Suffering Condition of the People	179
The Journal of Western Commerce Reports Rising Prices in Missouri	180
Dr. Holmes Cares for His Fellow Prisoners	186
How a Young Lady Got into Gratiot Street Prison	187
Only Eight in the Guard House	188

Seven

First Steps toward Emancipation 190

Henry T. Blow Asks President Abraham Lincoln to Pass an Emancipation Edict	194
A Missouri Lady Dreads Winter among “insolent negroes”	194
Edward Bates Warns Provisional Governor Hamilton Gamble of Political Intrigues	195
“He talks of nothing but Emancipation”	196
Missourians React to the Emancipation Proclamation	198
Deed of Emancipation	200
A Union Soldier Deplores Lincoln’s Emancipation Proclamation	201
Private William R. Donaldson Criticizes the Recruitment of Black Soldiers	202
“If they want any of their family, they can arm themselves . . . and take them”	203
Missouri State Representatives Argue about Emancipation	204
Republican Isidor Bush Implores the People of Missouri to Take a Stand on Slavery	208
Negro Hunting	210
Recruiting Soldiers of African Descent	211
An Ambush at Poison Springs	213

*Eight*Reconciliation and Promises 215

“The ruinous . . . conservative war policy”	220
“Freedom as the watchword of our new life”	221
Private Solomon B. Childress Swears Vengeance on Columbia	223
William B. Napton Fears the Control of Radical Republicans	225
The Daily Missouri Democrat Celebrates the End of Slavery in Missouri	225
Cousin Jimmie Describes Emancipation on the Farm	226
George Cruzen Musters Out of the Confederate Service and Emigrates to Mexico	227
William Murphy Pleads for Release from Gratiot Street Prison	229
To All Who Were Rebels, Traitors, Sympathizers and Their Friends	229
W. R. Dyer Fears That the Country Is Drifting into Civil War Again	231
John Mercer Langston Demands Equality before the Law	232
This Great Problem of Reconstruction	236
Freedman’s Bank Records	237
Martyrdom in Missouri	239
An Ex-Confederate Soldier Applies for a Pension	241
Timeline	243
Discussion Questions	253
Notes	257
Selected Bibliography	268
Index	269