

Contents

List of Illustrations xi

Acknowledgments xiii

INTRODUCTION

Getting Our Hands Dirty

Karen Oslund 1

PART 1

Perceiving the Colonial Environment 17

CHAPTER ONE

The Prospective Colonist and Strange Environments:

Advice on Health and Prosperity

Andrew Wear 19

CHAPTER TWO

Carved Out of Nature:

Identity and Environment in German Colonial Africa

Daniel Rouven Steinbach 47

CHAPTER THREE

The Science of Nature and the Nature of Science in the Spanish and American Philippines

Greg Bankoff 78

CHAPTER FOUR

Aerial Photography and Colonial Discourse on the Agricultural Crisis in Late-Colonial Indochina, 1930–1945

David Biggs 109

PART 2

Managing the Colonial Environment 133

CHAPTER FIVE

Wetland Colonies:
Louisiana, Guangzhou, Pondicherry, and Senegal

Christopher Morris 135

CHAPTER SIX

Colonization of the Russian North: A Frozen Frontier

Julia Lajus 164

CHAPTER SEVEN

Recasting Disease and Its Environment:
Indigenous Medical Practitioners, the Plague, and Politics in Colonial India, 1898–1910

Kavita Sivaramakrishnan 191

CHAPTER EIGHT

Changing Times, Changing Palates:
The Dietary Impacts of Basuto Adaptation to New Rulers, Crops, and Markets, 1830s–1966

Phia Steyn 214

PART 3
The Legacy of Colonialism 237

CHAPTER NINE
State Rationality, Development, and the Making of State Territory:
From Colonial Extraction to Postcolonial Conservation
in Southern Mozambique
Elizabeth Lunstrum 239

CHAPTER TEN
Ecological Communication
at the Oxford Imperial Forestry Institute
Peder Anker 275

CHAPTER ELEVEN
Colonial Experts, Developmental and Environmental Doctrines, and the Legacies of Late British Colonialism
Joseph M. Hodge 300

List of Contributors 327

Index 331